E-Tabs have launched Precision Reporting in response to the rising demand for outsourced report automation solutions.

With the start of the recovery period many MR firms are still operating with reduced resources.

Transferring portions of your workload to outside suppliers is becoming an increasingly attractive alternative because it enables you to take on more complicated projects and allows analysts and researchers to focus on adding value to projects through insight and analysis.

Headed by Jon Hackenbroch, who has more than 10 years experience in market research and report automation, Precision Reporting is made up of ten skilled reporting executives.

Clients will be able to take advantage of lower consultancy rates and will be able to rest assured that they won't miss out on additional projects because of constraints on resources.
