E-Tabs, the specialists in automating charts and reports for the MR industry have announced another appointment in their London office following an increased demand for their solution since winning The Queenâ€™s Award for Enterprise last month.

Ben Rosenheim joins E-Tabs as a Sales Development Executive. Ben previously worked for SNAP Surveys managing both public and private sector accounts. As a Business Development Executive at E-Tabs, Ben will be focusing on securing and developing new clients.

Benjamin Rietti, CEO of E-Tabs explained
â€œToday MR firms are facing an increasing amount of competition for new projects and clients. Automating the reporting process with E-Tabs has obvious benefits like improved project turn around times, but more strategically it enables their skilled research and client service staff to use time more effectively to concentrate on their core business of market research adding value to their client offering, rather than manually keying numbers into PowerPoint. Weâ€™re finding an increasing number of small to medium sized research companies winning more complex projects because they can now compete on price and reporting turnaround thanks to their investment in automated charting.Â We are particularly excited to welcome Ben to the team with his rare combination of market research and business development experience.â€•
